Brief Description of the Content

First day of the seminar highlighted the gender discrimination. Poverty is one of the causes of gender inequality in India. It is the root cause of gender discrimination in the patriarchal Indian society, as the economic dependence on the male counterpart is itself a cause of gender disparity. A total of 30% of people live below the poverty line, and out of this 70% are women.

Topic for Second day was Women trafficking in India. Women are one of the major groups considered most vulnerable to human trafficking. For purposes of sexual or commercial exploitation, women and girls are kidnapped, sold, and coerced by slavers in nearly every country in the world. Though many human rights and governmental organizations agree that trafficking in women is a serious violation of human rights that needs to be fought, the complex and widespread operations of human trafficking make prosecution and punishment of traffickers nearly impossible in many cases.

Third day topic is women's participation which is important for sustainable development. Main focused of this topic is Sustainable development. It depends on an equitable distribution of resources for today and for the future. It cannot be achieved without gender equality. Women's empowerment is a key factor for achieving sustainable economic growth, social development and environmental sustainability. The sustainable development should be based on balanced economic growth and price stability, a highly competitive social market economy, aiming at full employment, a high level of education and social progress, and a high level of protection and improvement of the quality of the environment.

Topic for last day of the Seminar is Gender Empowerment Index. A composite index measuring gender inequality in three basic dimensions of empowerment — economic participation and decision-making, political participation, and decision-making, and power over economic resources.

OUR PROJECT FOCUS

As a representative college of rural belt we concentrated on rural people and raw food wastage. Small scale farmers are the main target who are unable to use cold storage and refrigerators. So we wanted some cost effective and primitive form of techniques or mechanisms, by means of which they can store perishable fruits and vegetables for some longer period of time without developing any bacteria, moulds or fungus on them. Proposed small farmers don't use cold storage. Some people harvest and sell their veggies in the market in daily basis. Not all the veggies are sold out in the market and those are wasted. Taking the help of the proposed technique they can store their veggies atleast for 3-4 days after harvesting, without compromising any nutritional properties. The basic tool can be modified according to the need. It can be used by any poor people at their home for processed food storage also.

Our stakeholders: Small scale farmers in an outreach program done in our college campus
